WE NOMINATE

Richard Stoll Armstrong, newly-elected president of the student body at Princeton Theological Seminary for the academic year 1957-58, who at age 33—a decade after he received his Princeton University degree—is working for the day when he will qualify for the Presbyterian ministry. It was two short years ago that Armstrong, then public relations director of the Baltimore Orioles in the American League and regarded as a "coming executive" in organized baseball, suddenly decided that "I wanted to become a minister." He and his wife talked the compulsion through. As far as they could remember the ministry had never before been mentioned as a possible future but the following September (1955) they established their home here on Stockton Street.

One of the driving forces behind their decision, which was publicly announced in the spring of 1955 to the surprise of their closest associates in baseball, was the lingering illness of their next-to-oldest child, five-year old Ricky, who a year earlier had joined his losing battle with leukemia. Although everything within the reach of human beings had been done, Ricky died less than a month after his parents moved to Princeton. "This experience alone gave us a tremendous faith in God," Armstrong recently told a writer for Presbyterian Life magazine. "We wanted Ricky to come with us to Princeton—and he did. His life has been an inspiration to us."

Baltimore-born and the son of a Maryland "sports great," now serving as business manager of the major-league Orioles, Armstrong starred in three sports and captained the basketball and baseball teams at the McDonogh School before entering Princeton. As a war-motivated university undergraduate, who interrupted his studies for commissioned sea duty, he distinguished himself as a pitcher-outfielder and, following graduation, "filled out" a summer in the minor leagues. With no intention of prolonging his days as an athlete, he "caught on" in the front-office, held forth as general manager for a major-league "farm club" in Ohio and subsequently devoted three years to directing public relations for the beloved and beleaguered Philadelphia Athletics of recent memory.

Another year with a Philadelphia advertising agency and two seasons with the Orioles completed Armstrong's preparations for a promising, five-figure career in the nebulous sphere of public relations. On all this he turned his back even after he had resolved to devote his life to baseball. In the past two years (since enrolling in the Seminary) he has used his experience as a means to an all-important end—supplementing his income by free-lance writing, occasionally knocking out jingles for television and radio commercials and sometimes directing radio and television productions. At the moment he is proving his versatility and competence as part-time assistant to the Seminary's administrative officers, notably to vice president James Quay.

For helping fill the growing need for ministers adequate to the growing demands of the present and future; for understanding all that is meant by a sense of values in the doubt-torn 20th Century; for believing in the things he believes in; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

EASTER BLEMISH

Accidents Mar Holiday. Three tragic automobile accidents at three scattered points in the Princeton area killed one person and put two others on the "critical" list during the Easter holidays, adding a somber note to an otherwise happy week end. In addition to the fatally or seriously injured, three innocent bystanders required hospital treatment for various painful bruises.

The first mishap occurred at 7:55 p.m. last Thursday, when Mrs. Isabelle Kopp, 79, stepped off the curb in front of 47 Wiggins Street in a rainstorm and was struck down. Early Easter morning, Gunnar Gunderson, 56, was killed when his car crashed into the rear of a stalled vehicle on the shoulder of Route 27, just east of Princeton. The third tragedy happened about 12:45 p.m. Tuesday, when a neighbor backed over two young sisters in Plainsboro.

Mrs. Kopp, of 43 Wiggins, rushed to Princeton Hospital by an ambulance of the First Aid Unit, was found to have sustained fractures of both ankles, a concussion (and possible fractured skull), a five-inch scalp laceration ,a cut right elbow and severe shock. She was placed immediately on the hospital's "critical" list, and, though her condition was considered "much improved" as Town Topics went to press, she was still "not out of the woods."

Reporting the results of their investigation of the accident, Patrolmen Frank Maguire and Theodore Lewis calculated that the victim was not seen until a moment before impact by Donald L. Wert, 30, of 215 Clover Lane driver of the auto which felled Mrs. Kopp. Mr. Wert said she must have been in the "blind spot" on his side of the car—a situation worsened by the rain and darkness—for he was "right on her" when she first appeared in his headlights. The officers issued no citations against the driver.

Sighted: Flying Saucers!

Don't look now (you can't miss 'em if you do), but flying saucers are back in the news—in a big way—in Princeton. Only this time they're not "mysterious" objects, possibly the handiwork of distant spacemen. This time around, they're "WHAM-O Pluto-Platters," plate-sized saucers made of "unbreakable polyethylene" (it looks like plastic) and described as "new gyroscopic airfoil" discs that really sail — "fun! fun!"

According to the WHAM-O Manufacturing Company, which has turned them out for cold cash (79 cents per), the "new" flying saucers serve many purposes: for games, boomerranging, curving right or left, straight flying, skipping, bouncing and pitching. According to Princeton retailers, they are selling like hot cakes. Tiger Auto, for example, reports the sale of two gross in a week. And Zinder's, with a fresh supply just received, marvels at the sale of one gross in three days.

One Princeton University student is known to have missed three innings of last Saturday's baseball game because he was otherwise occupied in a torrid game of "Frisbie," an impromptu but serious contest conceived by campus inhabitants and involving the multicolored platters. Therein lies a significant factor: so many undergraduates are buying up the WHAM-Os that Princeton youngsters can't seem to get their share.

D.O.A. at Hospital. State Police said that Mr. Gunderson, a Griggstown carpenter, died en route to Princeton Hospital of a brain hemorrhage after his car swerved from the paved portion of Route 27 and hit a car belonging to Louis McAllister, 46, of Trenton. Mr. McAllister, standing in front of his own disabled vehicle, suffered scalp cuts and back injuries when hurled away from it, while John H. Ford, 43, of R.D. 1, Princeton, a passenger in Mr. McAllister's auto, received various minor bruises.

The victim was employed by Matthews Construction Company of Princeton. He was driving home from Rocky Hill at the time of the fatal accident. Mr. McAllister was admitted for hospital observance, while Mr. Ford was merely treated and released. The accident occurred in Franklin Township.

In the long week end's third unfortunate highway accident, Kenneth Durland, of 50 Edgemere Avenue, Plainsboro, failed to see the two youngsters of his neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. William Swanhart, 48 Edgemere, as he moved out of his driveway following lunch on Tuesday. Both girls, Deborah, 2½, and Darlene, 4½, were playing behind Mr. Durland's auto when the incident took place.

Brought immediately to Princeton Hospital by Mr. Durland and the children's father, a Walker-Gordon dairy-man, Deborah was found to be in less serious condition than her sister, suffering from a concussion and contusions about the head. Darlene, on the "critical" list as Town Topics went to press, also sustained a concussion and a possible fractured skull.

PERSONALITIES

Mrs. Douglas E. Stuart, 12 Pardoe Road, mother of three, who this week assumed a position of considerable proportions when she began her new duties as first full-time Director of Public Relations for Princeton Hospital. A Rutgers School of Journalism graduate, Mrs. Stuart held a similar position at the Chestnut Hill (Pa.) Hospital, has also served as assistant editor of the Princeton University Press and a free-lance writer for the Philadelphia Inquirer and Bulletin.

Dr. John J. Conroy, 182 Prospect Avenue, who faultlessly umpired a three-hour session of top-flight professional tennis Tuesday night in Dillon Gymnasium before a near-capacity crowd. (For results, see page 21.) Holder of three college degrees, his 17 years as coach of Princeton's varsity squash and tennis teams have produced such achievements as a national championship; five consecutive Eastern titles; the longest (43 straight matches) winning streak in Princeton athletic history; and the highest (.846) winning average currently on the line at Old Nassau.

Antonio Diaforli, 117 Washington Road, Penns Neck, a Princeton High graduate of a decade ago who is about to join the steadily-growing Princeton Township Police Department as a patrolman. Employed at present as a carpenter, Mr. Diaforli plans shortly to become a resident of the municipality he will serve.

ROUND-UP

Before turning on that "Late Late Show this Saturday night (or Sunday morning, if you prefer), remember that you're going to lose an hour's sleep by turning your alarm clock ahead one hour . . . that's right, Daylight Saving Time for 1957 goes into effect this coming week end . . . speaking of time, Easter Sunday was the warmest day of the year and the warmest Easter on record, simply because it came much later than usual in point of time . . . it wasn't too warm, however, to keep from luring ex-Governor and Mrs. Thomas E. Dewey of New York into Trinity Church for the customarily beautiful services . . . and it was a blessing after (as well as before) the nasty rains of recent Princeton days.

As noted in last week's issue of Town Topics, progress on the construction of "Avalon Road" between John Street and Hodge Road is developing slowly but smoothly, except for the fact that someone decided the other day he'd like to take home the iron gates of Avalon for his own estate . . . all of a sudden, Borough employees realized that they weren't sure what to do about the gates, though they knew they must come down before the "link" artery can be completed . . . "lucky" Mayor Sturges will be asked to determine a fate for the gates, which may or may not have historic value . . . incidentally, there have been a number of critical rumors of late regarding the new Mercer Street parking lot, scheduled for completion in time to handle University Reunion traffic this June . . . city fathers keep insisting that handsome shrubbery will conceal meters, etc., from parishioners evacuating Trinity Church.

The Township Committee announced plans this week to build a parking space near Township Hall to accommodate 43 to 51 cars . . . it also eyed future road construction, will henceforth strive for longer-lasting surfaces by requiring that they be made of bituminous concrete, not bituminous macadam.

Some 12,000 to 14,000 telephone directories are being distributed throughout the Princeton area with many new numbers and listings . . . dial installation plans remain unchanged, with WAlnut 1 and 4 to replace PRinceton 1 next December . . . a supplementary insert to be pasted in the new directory will be delivered to subscribers at the time.

This may be premature billing, but there is reason to believe that the soon-to-be-finalized La Plaza property on North Harrison Street, just north of the new firehouse on both sides of that important thoroughfare, will be subdivided in the none-to-distant future . . . many questions arise concerning oversized gopher holes in the area, though these will represent no problem as long as the population trend TOWARD Princeton continues . . . with Scott Terrace, to the southeast of the La Plaza terrain, growing by leaps and bounds, it would appear that the town's east side is destined for "bigger things" even before cultivation of the "Gulick Estate" . . . of course, the initial Nu-Level Homes, barely north of the Borough-Township line on Harrison, remain a sizeable question-mark in the overall growth picture . . . who's building what where, and when?

Very short shots . . . the Public Library will be closed all day Thursday and Friday, May 2 and 3 . . . no, not for the celebration of any significant holidays or for the delivery of new books . . . just for construction of a new floor to hold the many books which now are threatening to deliver all books in the basement . . . Kiwanis Club members, recalling the fine success of "Plain and Fancy" a year ago, already are making plans for sponsorship of "The Pajama Game" at the Lambertville Music Circus on Sunday, June 23 . . . the "Princeton date" will fall in the final week of the great Broadway musical's month-long run, which opens the 1957 Lambertville slate.

CHEAPER BY THE (BAKER'S) DOZEN: "It's an amazing litter, and it's even more amazing that they all lived," one of several astonished Princeton veterinarians commented this week after viewing the 13 Labrador Retriever puppies (five females, eight males) now raising the roof at 215 Clover Lane, home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Wert. When the four-week-old registered canines (12 black, one buff) posed for their first photo, most of them obliged by stopping to drink from Mr. Wert's ingenious, home-made feeding trough. Also on hand were two young Werts, Becky (left), 4, holding the litter's proud mother, Inky Night, also 4, and Libby, 6, holding the equally proud father, Lochar Raffles, 5, the latter owned by Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Stockton, Van Dyke Road. The Werts, incidentally, will be looking for good homes for their many but temporary houseguests two weeks hence, and the charge for each will be nominal. (Town Topics Photo by Alan Richards)

A PRO AT POUTING

Gonzales in Bad Form. Pancho Gonzales, who can play the world's best tennis when he wants to, made it obvious Tuesday night that he didn't want to. Appearing in the 54th round of his 100-match bout with Australia's Ken Rosewall before some 2,400 spectators, Gonzales took only four games from the 1956 U.S. champion and Davis Cup star.

Although the victory was only his 17th in the series to 37 for Gonzales, Rosewall completely dominated the Dillon Gym exhibition, 6-1, 6-3. Gonzales' effort on match point was typical of his output during much of the 50-minute match: a weak return into the net of a none-too-difficult serve.

The evening's entertainment, well worthwhile despite Gonzales' case of pouts, opened with an 8-5 (professional scoring) victory for Pancho Segura over Australia's Dinny Pails. Long baseline rallies and spectacular scoring placements marked the duel.

After the Gonzales-Rosewall match—which was repeatedly graced by fine play on the part of the diminutive Aussie — the quartet engaged in a marathon doubles set. It was finally called at 17-all, neither the American nor the Australian pairs finding themselves able to break through service to bring matters to an end.

The doubles play produced much tremendous volleying and more fine placements, with the good-natured crowd eventually succeeding at bringing Gonzales out of the depth of his peeve. Reported misses ranged from a sore foot to a sore head—the latter at the thought Rosewall is trailing badly in the series but is well out in front with the lion's share of the proceeds.

LAND HUNT STARTED

School Plans Move Forward. The Princeton Township Board of Education took several preliminary steps at its meeting last week toward expansion of the municipality's school system. The action was prompted by the board's committee on new buildings, which reported that current population trends indicate the need for a new school by September, 1959.

Acting on the approval of the voters of the Township, the board authorized its attorney, Gordon Griffin, to seek purchase of two tracts of land totaling 10.8 acres bordering Riverside Drive and the extension of Prospect Street. The offer being made by the board for the tracts is $17,800, a figure equal to the official appraisal of the land by the Township, the board disclosed.

The Board of Education has also made an official request to the Township Committee for the transfer of that section of property deeded to the Township by General Robert Johnson earmarked in the deed for educational purposes. This move was made "for the purpose of making the choice of site for the next school a freer one and to acquire land now that will certainly be needed at some period in the Township growth," according to a board announcement.

To facilitate expedition of its plans for additional school space by 1959, the board also authorized the appointment by the president of the board of two advisory committees on new buildings, a citizens' committee and a staff group. These committees will be advisory in function and will be asked to "study, review, comment upon and criticize plans of the board and administration and make recommendations."

William Wilson, president of the Board of Education, plans to appoint eight members to the citizens' committee and six to the staff committee. Each group, will be asked to expand itself by at least an equal number of members so that only half or less of each committee will be of the board's choosing.

In other action, the Board authorized the formation of a second class for educable children in the fall. This class, instituted at the recommendation of Frank Heronian, school psychologist, will be for children in the lower grades in need of special instruction. The State of New Jersey

NINE NAMED PROFESSORS

Faculty Promotions Announced. The promotion of nine members of the Princeton University faculty to the rank of full professor, 13 to associate professor and 11 to assistant professor was announced this week by President Harold W. Dodds. All are effective July 1.

In addition, the University announced the appointment of four new assistant professors and the awarding of Bicentennial preceptorships for the years 1957-60 to seven of that rank. The preceptorships provide higher salaries than the average for assistant professors, afford $500 a year in addition for research expenses and offer a one-year leave of absence for further scholarship.

Those promoted to professorships:

Jesse W. Markham, Economics; Wallace D. Hayes, Aeronautical Engineering; Norman J. Sollenberger, Civil Engineering; Edward W. Suppiger, Mechanical Engineering; Alan S. Downer, English; Valentine Bargmann, Mathematics and Physics; Eric M. Rogers, Physics. The promotions of Colin S. Pittendrich, Biology, and Seymour M. Bogdonoff, Aeronautical Engineering, were announced earlier.

To the rank of associate professor: Edward C. Taylor, Chemistry; Morroe Berger, Economics and Sociology; Sin-I Cheng, Aeronautical Engineering; Preston R. Named to Bicentennial Preceptorships were Mr. Bohannan, Richard E. Quandt, Economics and Sociology; Howard C. Horsford, English; Robert B. Martin, English; John B. Hughes, Modern Languages; Otto Butz, politics, and Malcolm Diamond, Religion.

Dozen on Jury Panel. Twelve residents of the Princeton area have been chosen for possible service on the May term of the Mercer County Grand Jury. Of the 50 persons whose names were drawn this week, 23 will be selected to hear cases presented to them by the prosecutor for possible indictment.

The list includes David D. Holmes, 48 Barrann Avenue; William P. Starkey, Jr., Rosedale Road; Donald H. Tyler, 2721 Main Street, Lawrenceville; Amos Eno, Quaker Road; Lewis W. "Keep Princeton Clean"

Princeton's now-traditional "spring housecleaning," conducted jointly by the Borough and Township Engineering departments, has been scheduled for Monday through Friday noon of next week, with the regular garbage collector set to put extra trucks on the special job. For these five days only, state requirements will be relaxed and all residents will be urged to clean up their yards, dwellings, places of business and vacant lots.

An attempt will be made to cover the entire community each day, so that no yard burning will be necessary. Combustible material (leaves, brush, sweepings, old furniture)—broken into small pieces should be placed on the curb in separate containers, or tied compactly so that one man can lift it. Non-combustible materials (appliences, bedsprings, pots, pans, tin cans, bottles) also should be placed on the curb in separate containers.

Far Sale: "Car 30." Inspired by an item in last Thursday's New York Times, which noted that the private railroad car used by President Cleveland on his honeymoon 71 years ago may have to be dismantled for scrap unless it is purchased, Maurice Smith, Carter Road, has written to Town Topics and raised an interesting question. Mr. Smith wonders if there might not be "sufficient interest to acquire this car for the community," in view of the Clevelands' close association with Princeton.

According to the Times, the Presidential car, "with carved interior mahogany, an ornate cut-glass chandelier and a lounge for twelve persons, is gathering dust in the railroad's (New York, Ontario & Western) shop in Middletown, N. Y." It is presently in the hands of receivers for the now-defunct company, who are looking for a buyer, and is listed by them as "a rather special property—Car 30."

Mr. Smith endorses purchase of the car by his fellow townsmen: "It could be put to some good museum use on a siding in the approaches to Princeton, which are rapidly taking on the appearance of stockyards, rather than the entrance to a revered place where many come to grow in wisdom. You will recall the effective use of the Freedom Train in bringing to the larger public the sight and feel of historic documents."

"Road-e-o" Plans Completed. Final arrangements have been made for the teen-age "Road-e-o" to be held Saturday at the Shopping Center. Sponsoring the event, which is designed to promote safe driving among teenagers over the country, are the Junior Chamber of Commerce and Shelton Motor Company.

The actual driving test will be administered at 1 p.m. at the shopping center by a state trooper, members of the Township and Borough Police Departments and the driver education instructor at Princeton High School. The test will consist of driving along a straight line, following an offset curve, stopping on a prearranged mark and parallel parking.

A written test which is part of the contest will be given Friday at 5:15 at 44 Nassau Street and Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Shopping Center. Automobiles for the contest will be furnished by area automobile dealers.

PLAYERS' FEATURED PLAYERS: Betty Fussell and Burton Malkiel will share top billing and head a capable cast when the Princeton Community Players offer "The Master Builder" six times over the next two weekends. For some interesting observations on this major spring presentation, see below. (Photo by Ed Hein)

News Of The THEATRES

COMMUNITY PLAYERS

Ibsen, 1957 Style. Over the strong objections of some of their members, who now are backing them 100%, the Princeton Community Players will open a six-night modernized run of Henrik Ibsen's "The Master Builder" at 8:30 p.m. Thursday at the Playmill, 262 Alexander Street. Attendance at the first performance will be restricted to Players and their families, while the public will be welcomed at ensuing performances on Friday and Saturday this week and May 2, 3 and 4.

In connection with the Princeton group's "modernization" of the classic play, a decision which raised a few eyebrows and proved a temporary bone of contention, Professor Alan S. Downer of Princeton University has prepared the following timely comments:

"Recent performances of Shakespeare in modern dress have added an agreeable taste of novelty to familiar materials. The decision of the Community Players to offer their forthcoming production of the 'The Master Builder' in modern dress should add something more to Ibsen's work than a new twist. 'The Master Builder' is anything but a classic in the sense of a museum piece, and to get the actors out of high button shoes and bustles will help to display the immediacy, the vitality, and the current concern of what is going on on the stage.

"Bernard Shaw once posed the question, why should the goings-on in a remote Scandinavian village have any significance or interest for an English audience? Being Shaw, he was able to answer himself at some length. 'The Master Builder' in modern dress will answer the question for itself. Essentially it is the story of an older man whose marriage has become moribund, and the destructive influence of a young girl who is both innocent and ruthless, a story as familiar to the television audience as to the Scandinavians or the ancient Greeks. It is also the story of an artist in his search for inspiration and achievement at whatever cost to himself or his associates.

"But it is not that dull and deadly thing, a problem play. It does not try to settle the state of marriage or the relationship of the artist to society. It presents instead the sometimes comic, sometimes frightening, and always fascinating conflict of will and purpose that is the principle ingredient of good theatre. To see it in modern dress is to appreciate how successfully Ibsen achieved his declared purpose, the description of Man.' "

PRINCETON SAVOYARDS

"Penzance" Opens Thursday. Those devoted Gilbert & Sullivan performers, the Savoyards of Princeton, will continue their young but apparently well-established spring tradition this week by presenting "The Pirates of Penzance" at 8:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday in McCarter Theatre. On May 4, at 2:30 and 8:30 p.m., the third and fourth performances of the comic opera will conclude the Savoyards' 1957 production.

Tickets for the coming offering, selling well as a result of last year's happily received presentation of "Patience," are now available at the University Store (Princeton 5414) and also will be available at the McCarter box office prior to each show. The price range: $1.75, $2.00 and $2.50.

Contrary to an earlier report, the lead role of the Major-General will be played by Murray Cion, Savoyards president who was featured as Bunthorne in the 1956 production. No newcomer to the McCarter stage, Cion appeared there with the Triangle Club in "Tunis, Anyone?," "Spree de Corps" and this past season's "Take A Gander!"

Richard Weeder as Frederick will lend a voice that has been heard in Princeton in the Madrigal Group, the Friends of Music and much solo work. Rochelle Erb, who is cast as Mabel, comes to the Savoyards with the experience of several years of Gilbert & Sullivan with the Lancaster County Summer Musical Group. In addition, Virginia Heddinger, Janet Thorsen, Mary Strunsky and Joan Bugher have among them certified G & S credentials, plus solo work and church and choir singing.

T. Leslie Shear, the producer, has reported that the D'Oyly Carte tradition will provide the guiding principles of production. The Savoyards' 22-piece orchestra will be under the direction of William Memot.

The opera is set first in a rocky seashore on the coast, and later in a ruined chapel by moonlight. The setting has a very unusual three-dimensional effect and has been contrived in impressive fashion by Robert J. Hillier, the set designer.

THEATRE INTIME

—Three Busy Weeks. Three prize-winning student-written plays, the top one-actors selected from a recent contest, will be presented by Theatre Intime of Princeton University this Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The three-part program will begin at 8:30 each evening and will be held, admission free, at Murray Theatre on campus.

Commencing May 2 and continuing through May 11 (excluding Sunday, May 5), the popular University group will offer its major spring production, "The Caine Mutiny Mertiel." Tickets for this show (Monday-Thursday, $1.20, $1.50; Friday-Saturday, $1.80, $2.00) are now on sale at the University Store (Princeton 5414). Curtain time for all performances will be the usual 8:30.

James Kraft, former Intime secretary and veteran college actor, will be the big man behind scenes for "Caine Mutiny," serving as director. This week's directors for the one-act presentations will be David Sawyer ("White Lies"), Michael Glen ("The Comedy of Belshazzar's Feast") and David Fleishhacker ("If Love Can Re-enter").

Musical Comedy Scheduled. The Montgomery Community Players will perform a musical comedy, "The Rehearsal," at two public performances Friday and Saturday nights at 8:15. The play will be given in Smalley Hall on the grounds of the New Jersey Neuro-Psychiatric Institute. Thursday night, the play will be performed for patients and personnel from the Institute. The proceeds from the two public performances will be donated to charity.

Members of the cast are: Miss Norma Voorhees, Joseph Merk, Joseph McAllister, Mrs. Harvey Robinson, Mrs. Amelia Bechtold, Miss Hope Bucci, Mrs. Delores Fedun, Miss Ann Marie Cotter, Mrs. John M. Cotter, Mr. and Mrs.

SUN FAIRY: Sue Mesner is one of the fairies who dance in the forthcoming production of "The Sleeping Beauty."

Edward James, Harry Colby, John Majewski, Raymond Alvaro, Richard Crane, Mrs. Irene Crane, Louis Kubian, Mrs. Henry DeVore, Miss Gloria DeCento, Mrs. Foy DeCanto, and Miss Ann Castino.

James Tortoa is production manager, and the stage managers are Henry Devore and Thomas Tompkins. Mrs. Alvaro is art director and Ross Rohn and Gerald Matines have produced the show.

Musical from Lawrenceville. The Lawrenceville School will present its annual Spring Show, at McCarter Theatre May 2 and 3 at 8 p.m. A musical review, this year's show is entitled "Take it From Here."

Written by members of Lawrenceville's senior class, "Take it from Here" will be under the direction of John D. Humasan with Case Morgan serving as choreographer. The production's four skits will feature Bill Hillier, Joe Beidis and Dennis Fawcett.

160 in "Sleeping Beauty" Cast. Nearly 300 persons are contributing to the Princeton Ballet Society's scheduled production of "Sleeping Beauty" by Tschaikowsky. More than 160 young dancers will participate, while 130 adults are working behind the scenes on various committees.

With performances slated for May 9 and 10 at McCarter Theater, the ballet will mark the ninth appearance by the Society in the annual Children's Entertainment Series. Tickets may be purchased from Mrs. William Bonthron of the Great Road before May 1; thereafter at the University Store and at McCarter before each performance.

Adults have been grouped into 14 committees for such phases of the production as publicity, design, program and lighting. In addition, others are preparing costumes and aiding by furnishing transportation in carpools.

Aparri Dancers Plan Benefit. Hoping to provide two scholarships for a second year in a row, the Aparri School of Dance will stage a benefit performance on May 11 at Princeton High School. Miss Mila Gibbons, directress of the school, will appear in the program, which consists of a demonstration of Russian and French ballet technique.

A third grant for a young student will be added this year to

IT'S NEW To Us

The Colonel Is Back. If you remember a certain wallpaper from your childhood home, or if you have a nostalgic recollection of the paper in the first house you had as a bride, you can often find precisely the same pattern if you pore over the books of Birge Colonial papers at Morris Maple, 200 Nassau.

A wallpaper we have in mind is one called "Colonel Pope" that many of Mr. Maple's customers have asked for over the years. Just where the Colonel has been, nobody seems to know; but he's back again in the Birge files and if you have looked in vain for this dignified paper with its wide, serene, beveled blocks lightly touched with gold, here is your chance to examine it again.

"Deerfield"— a charming country paper, not quite so busy as most documentaries — shows a rider leading his horse to the drinking trough. "Royal Damask" is a very formal paper with a flocked surface.

Most of the Birge line is composed of American period papers, some of them 50 years old. They have been brought up to date with a broad palette of modern colors, and with such contemporary flourishes as washable plastic coatings.

Katzenbach and Warren, once aloof from such low-brow matters, has now produced a series of wallpapers that you can hang yourself. Formerly such papers were made by companies that specialized in kitchen and bathroom designs on the theory that nobody would dare attempt anything else. But the techniques have been perfected and slimmed down, and now anybody can hang.

The patterns include the kinds you would find in the rest of Maple's tremendous assortment, besides the usual kitchen and bath things we mentioned above. There are other lines besides Katzenbach and Warren, too.

All you do is take this roll of wallpaper, dip it into a big bucket of water . . .

The Chintz Is in Bloom. One of the first flowers to arrive in the spring, the chintz is notable for variety in both size and color. The latest comes from France and may be seen, in sample, at the Princeton Decorating Shop, 35 Palmer Square West. As long as you're papering the wall, you might as well run up new slipcovers, too.

This new French chintz comes in enough patterns to suit modern or traditional rooms, and its designers have been thoughtful enough to staple co-related plain colors and heavier fabrics to each swatch so you can do a whole room with a minimum of effort and a maximum of effect.

Floral motifs in the new fabrics are either small or large. One pattern in wide blue stripes on white, has life-size hydrangeas growing up the stripes.

Subtle pastels have been used on others. In the modern prints, leaves, flowers and birds have been stylized and softened—there are no strong abstract "moderns." In fact, many of the new designs would be quite appropriate in either modern or traditional settings.

Some new silk flowers from France can be artfully used in almost any manner you like. There are garlands of primroses, and a

Brick By Brick

To save yourself time, labor and mortar, you might investigate some brick walls at Morris Maple's Shop the next time you need a brick wall.

These are not bricks that are impervious to a wolf, and if you are a practical pig you won't build a house with them. But they do have certain decorative advantages and, as we say, you save all that mortar.

Brik-Art is a two-by-three foot panel of "bricks" moulded from a kind of plastic so that they look exactly like a brick wall. This is quite a different operation from the brick wallpaper you've seen so often. These things protrude from the wall about half an inch and there is about that much space between rows of bricks.

You may choose Dutch bricks, or the narrow and more modern ledge rock. The surface is washable, and it can be painted any color you like. It comes in white, and unless you're clever enough with a paint brush to achieve the precise shadings of real bricks, we suggest you leave your "wall" white.

the two scholarships set up for high school age pupils, Mrs. Seymour Goodheart, Mrs. Courtland Perkins and Miss Gibbons are conducting the Aparri School Scholarship Fund.

While one dance session a week is adequate for the average child, Miss Gibbons asserts that "the talented student should study several times a week, and such expense is not possible for many families." She added that scholarships would enable several children "who are worthy of support in their dance education" to progress at a more rapid rate.

THE PLAYHOUSE

The Spirit of St. Louis (April 25-30) needs no introduction, for the saga of Charles A. Lindbergh's historic air mastery of the Atlantic is perhaps the best-known true story of this century and in addition, was the title of Lindy's best-selling account (1953) of his fabulous flight. Here, however, is a motion picture worth a good deal more than the price of admission — in spite of the familiarity of the story— for the CinemaScope screen gives this thrilling adventure a new concept and, as directed by wily Billy Wilder, the film comes off as a first-rate cinematics.

Actually, "Spirit" is devoted primarily to the great trans-oceanic crossing, including the scheming and planning behind it, though effective "flashbacks" during the trip cover Lindy's exciting early days and some startling newsreel clips underscore his triumphant return to the United States. The production, of necessity, is a one-man show for James Stewart, who portrays the famous airman with remarkable conviction. While Paris-bound, Stewart may also be Oscar-bound once more in this one. And the fine WarnerColor effects don't hurt his cause either.

The Young Stranger (May 1-4) is James MacArthur, son of actress Helen Hayes and the late Charles MacArthur, who is indeed young—but no longer a stranger to Hollywood. For, in this stirring story of a 16-year-old high school student who is misunderstood by his ever-entertaining mother and his too-busy executive father, Master MacArthur registers an acting debut that will be remembered for a long time to come. Tenderly, movingly and convincingly, he dramatizes teen-age problems that will be appreciated by every parent of teen-aged children, not to mention the teen-agers themselves.

Lending extremely able support to the newcomer's lead are James Daly as his father, a movie producer; Kim Hunter as his high-little bouquet of violets and mimosa. A sheaf of white daisies has been worked entirely in tiny white beads and each flower has a yellow bead center.

A Print from Hawaii. Using designs and shapes that are reminiscent of batik work and other tropical folk art, some Hawaiian designers have made a print that has been used in a spring-and-summer wrap around dress now available at Bailey's in the Shopping Center.

The dress is cotton in turquoise and navy, two shades of red, or two beiges. It has a built-in bra, a cap sleeved bolero over its strapless top, and a wrap-around cut to the skirt. Comes in larger sizes, as well as the standard ones.

Tropical print appears again in two very full cotton skirts. The wide band is elasticized at each hip. Price: $5.95.

A dress that sails north of the tropics is a pale grey and white striped dacron with a self belt and narrow-gauge tracks of white lace running down the skirt front. Mr. Bailey shows it under a short grey wool jacket with white linen collar; the two pieces are separate, however.

Maternity wear for spring is tropical, too. Here's a beige blouse with a big splashy scene with palms, outrigger canoes (a woman in a maternity dress has little need for an additional outrigger) and a piece of ocean. Strikes the wearer at approximately the tropic of Capricorn.

For quieter occasions, there is a rose beige maternity blouse with narrow cord and loop design on a round yoke that is also the cap sleeve. Maternity pedal pushers are made of chino in black, aqua, beige, and natural. They are $3.98 and $4.98; the blouses are $5.98.

After-school play can be safe for school dresses if your tomboy wears a pair of pedal pushers and a sleeveless top. One set is bright red loosely woven cotton with a trace of black in the weave and white piping at the neck opening of the sleeveless blouse. Sizes 3-7.

A similar set comes in a natural linen-like fabric, also trimmed in white. These blouses hang outside for coolness. Who keeps them tucked in, anyway?

The Long and Short of it. A man will buy a sports shirt to keep himself cool and then deliberately order it with long sleeves. So they tell us at Lahey's, 150 Nassau. To keep these gentlemen contented, the Arrow shirt company makes most—or at least, many—of its models with both long and short sleeves.

Such is the case with the popular skip-dent shirt that comes in dusty aqua, blue, yellow, and a nice avocado green. A small plaid in maroon and white has long and short sleeves, and so does a shirt that comes in a kind of Tattersall —seems to have an extra line in it somewhere.

Batiste—the coolest fabric you can find for summer—comes in short sleeves only. The fabric is so fine and so soft that it isn't practical for a long-sleeved shirt.

You may have it in pale powder blue, tan or grey. The short sleeve appears again in some striped shirts. The stripe is broken or definite, the background white. These come in regular and button-downs.

If you've got everything they make in the usual sports shirt line, try a figured shirt. Mr. Lahey's figured styles have such a small pattern that nobody will ever know you're wearing a print anyway.

The background is white and occasionally, timidly, there will be the outline of a box about one-eighth inch each way. Another shirt has a quarter-inch fleur de lis about every six inches over its white expanse. Get the picture? Nothing very wild.

To wear with your sports shirt, Lahey suggests any of several pairs of walking shorts, designed for warm weather in cotton cord. They are blue or tan "baby" cords —very fine.

In a day or two, the pajamas for spring and summer will be in stock. Mr. Lahey expects them in crinkle crepe and batiste; Tattersall checks, solids and stripes. They will, of course, come in shorty and regular styles, and the prices will be $3.95 and $4.95.

society mother; James Gregory as the police sergeant in charge of juvenile work; Walt Bissell as the theatre manager with whom "The Young Stranger" becomes involved; and Jeff Silver as the disturbed youngster's companion. In addition to their significant contributions, Robert Dozier's tell-tale touch is very much in the picture, thanks to an admirable job of scriptwriting.

THE GARDEN

Albert Schweitzer (April 25-27), aside from being one of the truly great humanitarians of all time, is a living legend. Through this documentary, produced and directed by Jerome Hill and photographed in Eastmancolor, interested citizens of the world are given 80 minutes to explore the legend—to examine a man who has carved an indelible mark as philosopher, theologian, musician and doctor. Most of the recent shots show Dr. Schweitzer, in motion and in still photographs, at work in his hospital-village in Lambarene, French Equatorial Africa. An appropriate running commentary, written by the subject himself, is spoken by Fredric March, while an introductory narrative, contributed by Thomas Bruce Morgan, is spoken by Burgess Meredith.

The Silent World (April 29-May 4) takes the cinemaddict underwater for most of its eye-catching 86 minutes—to a depth of 247 feet for some scenes—as it covers photographically the oceanic universe, with its strange fauna and flora, amazing fish life and other beneath-the-sea wonders. No professional actors are employed in this true-adventure film, but the exploits of the "aquamen" and the Technicolored photography, directed by Edmond Sechan for Captain Jacques Yves-Cousteau and Louis Malle, are so fine that the motion picture already has won an Academy Award as the "best documentary feature" of 1956, plus a Golden Palm at the Cannes Film Festival. There is something for everyone in this underwater travelogue: an encounter with a herd of sperm whales, the exploration of a sunken freighter in the Gulf of Suez, interesting "run-ins" with various forms of under-sea life, the harrowing suspense when a tropical storm arises, etc., tec.

McCARTER THEATRE

Return of the Native, Jean-Leon Destine, his Calypso friends, his Voodoo accompanists and a bunch of other talented natives from the Caribbean descended on McCarter Theatre for what they thought was a one-night stand this Tuesday evening—and they thrilled the Princeton natives. In fact, the SRO croyd of Princeton enthusiasts proved so enthusiastic that the Destine troupe will be brought back by popular demand for repeat performances on June 14 and 15. "Reunion week-end" for Princeton University.

Richard Pleasant, one of McCarter's managing directors, insisted that the June arrangements were completed during an intermission, based on the early applause of the "Phi Beta Kappa audience." However, this point could not be substantiated and there were some who insisted that the applause was prompted by the fact that intermission finally arrived. In short, some felt the program was much too long.

As a matter of fact, one critical observer said, "They featured jungles in three different productions—and, regardless of what you do, a jungle is a jungle. I thought it was too repetitious." This repetition failed to perturb many spectators, however, as the ovations seemed sincere and the conversations in the foyer indicated general enjoyment of the evening's production.

Destine, of course, proved the standout of the show, a "fireball" of a dancer—supple, appealing—a hotter item than the warm April night the audience left outside. When he was onstage, there was no doubt whatsoever about the success of the entire offering.

The festival's Voodoo drummers, Alphonse Cimber and Edner Calvin, performed wonders on their elementary instruments, contributing considerably to the mysticism of the various dance numbers. Tedd Browne of Trinidad, a reasonable facsimile of popular Harry Belafonte, rendered a number of intriguing Calypso numbers, including the currently high-riding "Banana Boat Song," while Lady Calypso, a victim of too many bananas from that overladen boat, nonetheless put over some fairly convincing songs—perhaps as the Ella Fitzgerald of the Caribbean.

Amid the complete madness of this most unusual production, Bernard Dayde was responsible for a series of interesting sets, simple but quite effective in their simplicity. But this wasn't enough. To add to the carnival atmosphere, Destine & Co. insisted on dumping an endless amount of confetti on McCarter's patrons—a deluge described by Mr. Pleasant, his eyes already focused on June's turnouts, as "manna from heaven."

test will be sent to Red Bank for the state Road-e-o. The New Jersey winner will in turn compete in Washington, D.C., for the top prize of a $4,500 scholarship.

International Festival Planned. Musicians and dancers from many national backgrounds now living in the Princeton area will participate May 4 in the YWCA's tenth annual International Festival. Proceeds from the event, sponsored by the Y's World Fellowship Committee, will be contributed to the national Y's mutual assistance fund now operating in over 60 countries throughout the world.

The finale of the festival, planned by Mrs. William Babcock, will suggest the scope of the fellowship fund's work in addition to emphasizing the varied national backgrounds of Princeton residents. Children from over 20 countries in their national dress will participate in this performance under the direction of Miss Ruth Marie Perry of Princeton High School.

The program of music and dance will feature representatives of a number of national backgrounds. William Masselos, who is of Dutch and Greek parentage, will offer a piano performance of works by Charles Ives, Gomidas and Alan Hovhaness. Drishna Nayampalli of Bombay, India; Miss Anita Lee of Meeshen, Kwantung Province, China; and now of the Westminster Choir College, and Dominic Zullo will also perform.

The Balmoral Troupe of Scottish dancers with Ebenezer Patterson, bagpiper, will demonstrate three Scottish dances. American folk music will be presented by a group from the Columbus Boychoir School under the direction of Paul Ziegler.

Those at the festival will be invited to attend at square dance

DO-IT-YOURSELF SPIRIT

If at First You Don't . . . Convinced that Easter means rabbits, just as Christmas means gifts, 12-year-old Arnold Ryden Jr. decided to prepare properly for the occasion this year. He reasoned that past Easters had left him rabbitless because of a lack of such preparation. He figured that stockings are hung at Christmas for the annual deposit of presents, so he must arrange a similar corral for the much-desired bunny.

Taking matters into his own hands (quite literally), the optimistic Valley Road School student set about the task of building a suitable pen for the expected arrival. "He was really quite serious as he undertook the job," according to his parents, "and, while we admired his industry, we weren't planning on buying him a pet for Easter. And, when he did a wonderful piece of work on the pen, we really got a little worried about the whole situation."

The senior Rydens, of River Road, played for time a bit by suggesting that young Arnold make sure of the rabbit's appearance by attending the Eagles' traditional egg hunt at Princeton Country Day School. He was assured that discovery of one of the few prize-winning golden eggs would net him a live bunny. Still optimistic, the youth decided he would find a golden egg. And he did.

At last report, the Ryden's black and white Easter bunny was doing just fine in his new home.

Defense Test Monday

Princeton will join the rest of New Jersey in a statewide Civil Defense exercise on Monday. Labeled "Operation Ready No. 4", the drill is the fourth in a series.

At an undisclosed time during the day, an "alert" signal will warn residents to turn on their radios to await further instruction. The "alert" consists of a three-minute blast of sirens, factory whistles or horns.

About an hour later, the public will be required to find shelter for ten minutes when a three-minute "take cover" signal is sounded. Civil Defense authorities and police will halt traffic and stop work in schools, offices and factories until the "all clear" signal occurs.

YMCA to Hold Annual Meeting. The YMCA will hold its annual dinner meeting on Monday at 6:45 at the Westminster Choir College. President Raymond A. Bowers will submit his report and make awards to retiring members of the board of directors.

Dean Mathey, a member of the Board of the Central Atlantic Area YMCA, is the scheduled speaker. A Charter Trustee of Princeton University, Mr. Mathey is Chair-

Don't Throw It Away!

If you own a college-level reference volume or textbook, in reasonably good condition, Rick C. Shoup, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shoup, 6 Rollingmead, hopes you'll see that it gets into his hands rather than the nearest ashcan—if you're planning to throw it way, that is. In other words, when you do your spring housecleaning and uncover a book you don't want (especially a medical book published since 1943), please keep him in mind.

Young Shoup is a student at Jacksonville University, a college that figures the best way to grow is to start building a worthwhile library. The University is situated close to two Naval bases, so the educational demands of Navy veterans and enlisted men currently are greater than the means. Rick C. Shoup has appointed himself a committee-of-one in the education-minded Princeton area to recruit stray volumes for his school.

To aid their enthusiastic son, Mr. and Mrs. Shoup have arranged for three places to accept donated books between now and May 4. They are Littlebrook School and Center Stationers (each day but Saturday and Sunday), and Frederick Harris' each day (except Sunday). Also, the Shoups will be delighted to arrange pickups of books if Princetonians will phone 1050-R or 5104.

OH, MY ACHING HEAD! Performing appropriately (for the benefit of a prompting photographer), Marion Shiery demonstrates the typical reaction of some consumers to the latest drug "fad"—across-the-counter sales, without prescriptions, of "tranquilizers" for nervous tension. Miss Shiery, a high school junior, really isn't in the market for the so-called "happy pills" at this stage of the game, but she has an opinion regarding them and it is disclosed below, along with opinions of eight other Princetonians on the same timely subject. (Town Topics Photo by Alan Richards)

Question of the Week

Question: Do you think the recent discoveries in "tranquilizer" drugs such as "Miltown" will be the answer to the modern tendency toward tension and fast living?

Location: Downtown Princeton.

Mrs. John Cullen, 290 Stockton Street, housewife: It seems to me you have to get at the source of tension rather than keep taking medicine to relieve tension temporarily. It's the same sort of thing with headaches; they may be an indication that you need glasses. I feel that if a person has enough tension to buy tranquilizers, he ought to consult a doctor to see if there isn't something in his personality, his way of life or his pace of living that is making him tense.

J. Fred Fisher, vice-president of the Princeton Bank and Trust Company: I think they definitely will be the answer, especially if used as directed by the family physician. I think tranquilizers are a wonderful discovery. As an offset to depressing situations. I think they are the up-and-coming discovery. This is borne out in the rapid growth of the drug firms dealing in these products. I understand many people are now asking their physicians for the drugs.

Miss Mary Willcox, 176 Jefferson Road, kindergarten teacher at the Nassau Street Elementary School: I feel as if it might partly be an answer, but I don't think it is the ultimate answer. To ease tension we need to calm down a bit and live slower lives. We need to try not to do so many things. I think most of all we need to live more spiritual lives; we need to seek first the Kingdom of God, not material things. By taking all these drugs and pills I think one might tie himself up in worse knots.

Francis Murphy, 17 Pelham Street, sergeant first class, U. S. Army: I think tranquilizers can provide only temporary relief; they couldn't do any more than that. I'm sure they have their place. As an average citizen I have no prejudice against their use by those who want them. That's the same way I feel about liquor and tobacco. I do feel, however, that tranquilizers should be subject to the same restrictions as liquor, such as prohibiting their sale to minors. Those restrictions have grown up over a number of years and I think they are valid.

Mrs. Burton Jackson, Bedens Brook Road, Skillman: I don't think they are going to be an answer to tension at all. They may help, but they aren't the answer. People are going to have to learn to live differently—to cut out unnecessary activity. I live in the country myself, and life is much easier there. In the country, now, we don't do unnecessary things.

Bottled Brainwash

Ever since onetime TVagabond Milton Berle cracked his first gag about Miltown and earned the new nickname of "Miltown" Berle, "tranquilizer" pills such as Miltown have enjoyed a phenomenal increase in sales throughout the United States. Prescriptions have been required in most cities for most of the tried-and-true "happy pills," given serious publicity by a host of national magazines as well as amusing publicity by the funnymen, and many psychiatrists have hailed their medical importance.

Now, of course, enterprising drug firms have come to realize the desires of consumers in our fast-paced society and suddenly have flooded their outlets with "tranquilizers" for nervous tension which don't require a doctor's prescription. Just how helpful, or harmful, these new products will prove has yet to be determined, but they are selling well already in many drug stores, including a few in Princeton. And they are stimulating lots of new conversation about "tranquilizers."

Dave Richtor, 74 Spruce Street, a student at the Princeton Theological Seminary: Tranquilizers often seem to help nervous tension, but actually you are only treating the symptoms and not the disease itself. With such drugs you are not getting at the root of the problem. I don't think I know the real answer to the speed of modern life, but I do know it lies deeper than the tranquilizers can go. I am sure that nervous tension comes from a lack of spiritual and emotional security in our society.

Marion Shiery, Princeton Avenue, junior at Princeton High and part-time sales clerk at Zinder's: I don't think it's a very good idea for people to start relying on them when they don't really need to—so, you can see, I'm opposed to the sale of "tranquilizers" over-the-counter without a prescription. If the "happy pills" really are needed by a person, then I think that person definitely should have a doctor's prescription.

Alfred Adler, Hightstown, instructor in math at Princeton University: From what I've read in various medical journals and publications for amateur psychologists, they're effective and really quite magnificent. But, as far as over-the-counter sales are concerned, I believe in restrictions on them, just as there are restrictions on effective sleeping pills. In fact, the dangers con—

VERSATILE PRINCETONIAN

Man of Many Masks. "When you work in the theatre, you have to be able to do a little of everything." That's the guiding philosophy of A. Munroe Wade of 670 Princeton-Kingston Road, a man who practices what he preaches. He is now devoting full time to demonstrating in this area and beyond it his ability as an actor, director and playwright.

A resident of Princeton for almost a quarter-century, Mr. Wade has shown unusual versatility in the field of drama. His work embraces the stage, the movies and television.

"Roe" Wade, an engaging 48-year-old widower whose off-stage mannerisms are often miniature performances in themselves, is a man who fell in love with the theatre during his undergraduate days at Princeton and has never regretted the romance. A Triangle Club president in the era of the late Prof. Donald C. Stuart, he withdrew from the business world in 1954 to devote his full time to the "hobby" he had never dropped.

"These last three years have been the happiest of my life," Mr. Wade says of his work. "They certainly weren't the most profitable, but they have been the most enjoyable."

A member of Princeton's Class of 1930, Mr. Wade was vice-president of Theatre Intime in his senior year in addition to his Triangle post. He climaxed his career with the latter troupe by playing the comedy female, "Thais de Vaudreuil," in the 1929-30 production of "The Golden Dog," a show he wrote in collaboration with Joshua Logan '31.

Since 1954, Mr. Wade has done a good bit of acting and directing for the Princeton Community Players. He has also spent three seasons directing the Pennington Theater Club productions and the annual Children's Theatre Project of the Trenton Junior League.

"New Experience" Provided. The Children's Theatre Project each year brings dramatic presentations to more than 5,000 school children in the Trenton area. "So many of these kids today have never seen a real play," Mr. Wade notes. "So many of them are conditioned to TV and the movies that seeing a play is a new experience for them."

HOW IT ALL STARTED: A. Munroe Wade began his long theatrical career in Triangle Club productions of the late '20's. He's costumed above for "Zuider Zee," a genial piece about the Dutch that included a young Princeton sophomore, Joshua Logan, in the cast.

Mr. Wade has also directed a similar production by the Junior League of Morristown that performed before some 6,000 children. His directing activities have also extended to Miss Fine's School.

In addition to numerous acting assignments in this area, Mr. Wade last fall appeared in an off-Broadway production in New York City. For a month he played second-lead in the Bleckfriars' "Age in Greece."

The Pennington production of Sir James Berry's "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals" this spring was awarded top honors in the New Jersey Theatrical Tournament. In the state-wide finals held in Trenton, the Wade-directed play placed third.

Musical Comedy Writer. Despite a pressing schedule of directing and acting assignments, Mr. Wade has also found time for original work in another field—playwrighting. The author of books for four musical comedies, he plans to return to his typewriter this spring.

"Writing for the theatre is the hardest thing to crack," he admits, "but it is the best long-term thing you can do."

Roe Wade is already known to Princeton audiences for the three musical comedies he wrote in collaboration with Mayor P. Mec-Kay Sturges. With Mr. Wade writing the book and Mayor Sturges the music, the team provided the Community Players with "Along the Road," "Sailing On" and "The Magic Well."

"The Magic Well," presented in 1952, provided Mr. Wade with what he calls his "most exciting moment in the theatre." After last-minute casting problems forced him to direct the show, another last minute incident — a case of laryngitis contracted by Karl Light, the show's leading man—threw the author-odirector-actor into the major role on opening night.

"The Magic Well" is currently being considered for production on television, a medium Mr. Wade feels is doing a good job of bringing good drama into the home. "It's not so much the medium that counts as much as the play itself," he feels. "As Shakespeare said, 'the play's the thing'."

Mr. Wade also has another musical comedy, "Connecticut Salt Box" written with Milton Peterson and Peter March of New York, in the works. "It's in the hands of the agent now," he reports, "and we still have hopes for it. With this sort of thing you never know."

Daughter Also Acts. It is not surprising that much of Mr. Wade's theatrical enthusiasm has been endowed upon his 18-year-old daughter, Molly. Now a freshman at the University of Toronto, she has already appeared in "The Tempest" and "Dark of the Moon" there. Before leaving Princeton, she also served as publicity manager for the University Players.

Following his marriage to Miss Lucile Coffey of Thompson, Conn., this week, Mr. Wade hopes to tackle a serious dramatic work of his own as well as another musical comedy book. He is already full of ideas for both projects.

"The problem is not the ideas, but finding the time to write them down," he points out, "and of course finding the ability to write them well."

If Mr. Wade doesn't get his own plays written, it will be because of his numerous undertakings in theatrical productions, commercial movies such as the ones he has made for On Film Inc. and General Films; narrations of religious films such as those he has done for the Presbyterian Church's Board of Christian Education, and the like. Munroe Wade is indeed a man of many masks in the theatre.

ART
In Princeton

LITTLE GALLERY EXHIBIT

Abstract Paintings on View. William Seitz is known to many as a teacher of modern art on the faculty of Princeton University and also as a painter. Mr. Seitz has had three one-man shows at the Willard Gallery in New York, two one man shows at Princeton.

He has also shown at the Museum of Modern Art and at the Whitney Museum. A retrospective exhibition of his paintings is at the Little Gallery through Tuesday.

Abstract painting is perhaps the most difficult type of painting to try to make a person visualize through the medium of words. One deals with the skeleton of paintings, with line and color and movement. These are formed into compositions and one faces the painting elements raw without the distraction of subject matter.

Without the subject matter of landscape, still-life, portrait, or figural groupings the painting must stand or fall on the merits of its essentials color, harmonies or clashes, the working of shape against shape, the movement or stability of the elements, the mood evoked. A difficult mode of painting.

The group of paintings assembled show various stages in the treatment of abstract painting. There is a surrealist painting from the war years and next a group of paintings from 1948, some seemingly from a series.

"Equilibrium," dated 1948, is a decorative juxtaposition of shapes and color. Rectangles and egg-shapes, brightly colored and lined over, fill a vertical format. It gives the feeling of colorful japanese lanterns or signs against the night. Another painting from the same year, "Overtones", shows a built up structure of cornblike forms, sharp toothed objects turned inward against each other in conflict.

In 1952 an entirely new approach comes into being. Instead of structures being built up and balanced, the canvas is filled with organic-looking forms in activity. In "Forest", dated 1952, one is faced with a green canvas with a luarge area in black in which amoeba-like forms are reserved. A rising movement and squirm of organic-looking forms dominate the canvas.

Only one painting (dated 1954) is from Mr. Seitz's most recent work but most of the paintings on the first floor gallery are painted in this manner. The movement has stopped and the balancing of strips of color and shapes has begun. Color is perhaps most important in these paintings and the balancing of forms is subtle and satisfying.

The subject of a millpond has been the jumping off point for many of these paintings. The largest, an oil on canvas, is very simple. A long rectangle of canvas is divided in half by a grey line with strips in reds and oranges above and strips of greens and blues below. The essentials are in shapes and colors and yet interesting and esthetically pleasing.

Another painting of the "Millpond No. 2" shows a window in the green water. A rectangle of orange plays against a long black band of color. The solid black in turn plays against the more moving color of the water.

Here is a painter who can handle the skeleton of painting with skill and feeling. That as many of his paintings succeed is extraordinary, considering the difficulty of handling the essentials.

REGATTA DAY

Eight Races Saturday. One of the busiest afternoons Lake Carnegie has known is on tap Saturday, with warm sunshine certain to attract hundreds of spectators to its banks for almost continuous action. No less than 26 crews will compete against each other in eight races that will last from 3 to 5:30.

Feature events are the meetings of the 150-lb. crews of Columbia, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Princeton, scheduled for 4 o'clock and the race for the Childs Cup that will send Princeton's heavyweights against Columbia and Penn. The latter is set for 5:30; the Henley distance of 1 5/16 miles will prevail.

The schedule also calls for a baseball-lacrosse doubleheader at University Field, with Columbia providing the opposition at 1 o'clock in an Eastern League ball game and Dartmouth due here for an Ivy lacrosse contest at 4.

Harvard and Princeton will meet in golf at 1:30 on the Springdale course, with the tennis team traveling to West Point to meet Army. The track team will be represented in the Penn Relays at Philadelphhia.

Crew Loses by Inches. A tremendous surge by Navy in the final 200 yards gave the midshipmen victory in Saturday's crew race before some 3,000 spectators banked along Lake Carnegie. The final bite of the victors' oars into the water as they hit the finish line pulled their shell ahead of Princeton by a scant 12 inches.

The Orange and Black had led most of the way, holding its greatest margin—about half a length—with a half-mile of the mile and three-qquarters distance left. Navy's final sprint then barely caught the Tigers, with the judges debating for two or three minutes before the verdict was announced.

The Annapolis entries also took the jayvee and freshman events by margins of more than a length to "sweep the river." The time of 8:45 in the varsity race was only four seconds over the Carnegie course record, set two years ago by Cornell.

Ball Team Drops a Pair. In a surprise reversal of form, the baseball team lost two games last weekend as pitching and bunting ability, the only two assets it had been able to count on in recent years, largely deserted it. Lone exception to the downward trend was the fine mound job turned in by sophomore Herm Belz, who richly deserved a fate better than his 16-inning loss to Colgate.

Righthander Leigh Ford had Brown all wrapped up for a 2-0 shutout after seven innings Friday afternoon when he suddenly lost his touch. Up to that moment, he had blanked the Bruins on a pair of scattered hits, but in the eighth they shoved over five runs with the aid of as many hits and a costly error chargeable to the Princeton pitcher himself.

The Eastern League game went to the visitors by a 5-2 count, the loss dropping the Tigers squarely into the cellar. They had been counted on as a pennant contender this season, but with Ford off form and power at the plate virtually vanished with the disappearance of the usually-dependable bunting ability, the future is not bright.

Time and again in the four-hour contest against Colgate Saturday, the Orange and Black might well have won had its batters been able to lay down a bunt. One of the few that worked was completely nullified when the runner on third was late in coming down the line and was thrown out at the plate by six feet with what would have been the winning run.

Colgate pried three runs away from Belz in the second, his troubles starting when catcher Reds McMillan missed a foul fly hit by the leadoff batter, who promptly singled and eventually scored. The Tigers got two back in their half of the inning, and tied the score on an unearned run in the sixth.

From the third through the 15th, Belz pitched nothing but goose eggs. Time and again, Princeton had the lead runner aboard, but could not push him around, despite an almost continuously-helping hand from the visitors, who were charged with eight errors.

Belz tired in the 16th, yielding two hits and two walks to give Colgate a 5-3 triumph. He has now hurled 39 innings against Lafayette and Colgate, 26 of them scoreless, and still was not credited with a victory either time. Ford picked up the 3-2 win over the Leopards when Belz was removed after working 13 innings on a cold day.

The Tigers face New York University at 4 Thursday afternoon, and will hope to break into the league victory column against Columbia Saturday. Eddie Donovan shuffled his lineup for the two games, giving Tom Frost the nod ot short and using Garry Thrasher and Dave Silhanek in the outfield Saturday, but no one is hitting steadily. In the last 34 innings, the Princeton run total stands at six.

TRACK RECORD FALLS

Javelin Mark Set. Big Nick Kovalakides, the muscular Princeton High track captain who threatens to toss the javelin into the next county every time he picks it up, caused a great deal of excitement at West Point last Saturday when he let loose with a heave of 195 feet 9½ inches. In addition to representing the sole schoolboy victory against a better-than-average Army Plebe squad, the throw also eclipsed Kovalakides' record PHS javelin throw of 182 feet 6 inches, established a year ago.

The Little Tiger's remarkable feat, in the season's opening meet, prompted a prediction from his coach, Win Niles, that he will surpass the 200-foot mark before the final competition of the current campaign. If so, the talented high school senior will stand a fine chance of setting a higher PHS standard than the record of 204 feet which now is listed as the official Princeton University record.

"Nick without question was the star for us," Coach Niles observed folowing the day's events on the banks of the Hudson, which saw the Plebes capture 14 of 15 first places and overwhelm a combined force from Princeton, New Brunswick and Highland Park by a 99-to-28 margin. "He came through with seconds in the shot and discuss along with his win in the javelin to give him 11 of Princeton's 18 points. Highland Park picked up nine points and New Brunswick could manage only three."

Dick Knowles gave PHS a potent one-two punch in the javeline at West Point, effecting a toss of 179 feet 3 inches for the runner-up position in that event. Other Little Tigers who contributed points were Ron Gilette, with a 16-second third-place finish in the high hurdles (a 15.9 clocking won the close event), and Roddy Pannell, whose 19-foot 9¼-inch leap in the broad jump gave him a third place.

Looking ahead, Niles said he will have a truer picture of his squad's overal strength, particularly in the question-mark running events, after next Tuesday's dual meet with Long Branch in the shore town. Meanwhile, he will enter only his best four-man mile relay team (perhaps composed of Jim Henderson, Nelson Coughlan, Roger Wells and Pannell) in the class III competition this Friday at the traditional Penn Relays, which are supposed to draw a record turnout of 3,387 athletes from 542 colleges and schools.

Last Thursday's belatedly scheduled dual meet with Highland Park, washed away by a steady spring downpour, will not be rescheduled because both teams have full slates, Niles reported. However, the Little Tigers will send entries to the tough Newark scholastic meet on May 4, a new addition to the PHS schedule since it was first announced.

BAD DAY AT PHS

Same Story, Different Chapter. Rained out of their home opener with a mighty touted Trenton High baseball team last Friday, the Little Tigers of Princeton High waited until Monday afternoon to play their initial game of the season on familiar ground. Perhaps they should have waited just a little longer, for a hard-hitting Trenton Catholic nine (now 2-0) spoiled the home debut by banging out 10 safeties and turning back PHS, 8-3.

For a change, it was not a case of Princeton losing because of too few hits and too many errors. This time, Harold (Porky) Phox, the Little Tigers' No. 1 pitcher, worked himself into two jams on his own hook and failed to work himself out of either one in time to save the day. In the top of the first inning, the visiting Wave batters combined three solid blows with a hit batsman for four runs and, in the second, they put the game on ice by scoring three more runs on another trio of hits.

Princeton, held to four scratch safeties in its first outing (the current record: (0-2), seemed to snap out of the doldrums in the home half of the first, getting back into the contest in a hurry with three earned runs. Roger Morgan opened the frame with a walk and trotted to the plate in front of Dave Britton following back-to-back doubles by Britton and Alan Ammerman. Then, with two outs, Phox completed PHS' scoring for the afternoon by lacing a single that brought in Ammerman.

After the first, the Little Tigers collected only three more singles—by Ivan Riddick, Bryce Chase and George Wilson — and these were all-too-well-scattered as Pitcher Larry Sobkowiak shook off his first-inning difficulties and bore down the rest of the way. This sudden effectiveness on the part of Catholic's hurler, plus Phox's unusually ineffective display, spelled the difference between the two clubs.

Phox toiled four innings for the losers, allowing three of the Wave's four passes and nine of its 10 hits. Riddick moved in from centerfield to pitch the fifth and sixth frames, and probably won the starting assignment against Trenton (in Trenton) next Monday on the basis of his efforts, which included only one base on balls and a lone, unimportant single. Jack Hawkins, Princeton's third righthander and the first freshman player to hurl for the varsity in memory, retired the visitors in order in the final round.

For Coach Noel Bailey's winning contingent, Centerfielder Dick Pollard was the big gun, knocking out hits in his first three of five trips to the plate. PHS made three errors, to none for Catholic, though the miscues had little to do with the game's outcome.

Princeton Coach Harry Zoll used Chase in the outfield in place of Dick Borger and replaced Third Baseman Joe Chibbaro with Wilson midway through the proceedings. He indicated he would continue to switch until he found a winning combination —which might come later this week if a thus-far-unscheduled game can be added to the short 12-contest slate.

Rain, Rain, Go Away. Despite persistent reports that the rain stays mainly on the plain in Spain, the Hun School's baseball team discovered an appreciable amount of precipitation on the playing field last Wednesday and wound up with its second postponement in the season's first five scheduled games. Just when last week's contest with Bayley-Ellard, plus the spring's opener

Baseball Puzzle

Baseball fans who enjoy setting up hypothetical puzzles for each other had a real one to pass along following Saturday's Colgate-Princeton game:

Only three men bat in an inning but all reach first safely and at one point, there are runners on first and third and none out. The opposing team makes two errors but the team at bat still fails to score. How?

It happened this way. Dale Casto was safe when the second baseman threw low on his grounder. Gene Mignogna bunted and when the pitcher threw wide of second, Casto went to third and Mignogna was safe at first. However, the latter took too wide a turn and was picked off on the relay from the outfield. Casto then was thrown out at the plate when he started too late on Frost's squeeze bunt and a moment later, Frost was out trying to steal second.

with Pennington High, will be played—if they are—was not known by Coach Zig Emery the last time he stopped looking up at the threatening April skies.

The Red & Black slate, always pretty crowded, is so jammed for the next several weeks that replays of rained-out engagements do not seem likely at all. An indication of the situation: Hun will go to Hoboken for a game with Stevens Academy this Friday, then will be back in town for home tussles with Tower Hill next Tuesday and Delbarton next Thursday (weather permitting.) The season's sixth (scheduled) contest, against Germantown Friends in Pennsylvania on Tuesday, was started too late for inclusion in this issue of TOWN TOPICS.

Baseball at Witherspoon. The Witherspoon School will open its 1957 baseball season on its home field Monday by facing the Valley Road School. Under coach Simeon Moss Witherspoon has been practicing for over a month.

With few of last year's starters returning, Coach Moss is still undecided on a starting lineup for Witherspoon's first fray. Those most likely to appear, however, include Tommy Petrone at shortstop and Charlie Curillo at third in the infield and Dave Smith, Gary Grover and Lewis Wilson in the outfield.

Still battling for positions are Ernie Hunt and Teddy Swinnerton at second and Bill Perkins and Howard Gould at first. The starting catcher is also undecided.

Robby Swinnerton and Petrone are scheduled to handle the mound duties with Timmy Colman helping in the outfield. Petrone is slated to start against Valley Road Monday.

BOWLING NOTES

The attention of local bowling enthusiasts will be focused more firmly than ever on Princeton Recreation Center at 7 p.m. this Thursday, when Princeton Engine Company No. 1 challenges Belle Mead in a match which will determine the championship of the torrid Tri-County Firemen's League race. . . . No. 1 (132 wins) needs a clean sweep of first-place Belle Mead (135) to avoid settling for second-best honors, for this week's tell-tale meeting falls on the loop's final night of kegling this season. . . . Kingston (118), in the third-place slot, cannot catch up with the leaders and cannot be overtaken by any of the other nine clubs. . . . Last week, No. 1 swept three games from Princeton Junction to breathe heavily on Belle Mead, which took only two of three from Hook & Ladder. . . . High individual performers were Joe Pfister, 219, Lum Reynolds, 216, Art Farr, 212, Gil Ireland, 208, and Sal Ferrante, 202. . . . Karl Von Nordheim of cellar-dwelling K.F.D. posted only a 117 score, but he managed it three straight times for a tough-to-get triplicate.

Tiger Garage's advantage over runner-up Sunbeam in the Princeton "A" League was stretched to a 108-91 margin when the pacesetters stopped the challengers in all three games. . . . John Ferguson was the loop's top tosser, with a 222, followed by Al Dempster and Bill Bregenzer, with 202 apiece. . . . The high-riding National Guardsmen (60) swept their match against third-place Boice Lumber (46) in the Princeton "B" League, actually dropping Boice into a deadlock with the Plainsboro Lions, but Jefferson Plumbing (56) remained a close second by administering the same treatment in its outing with sixth-place Maul Electric . . . Tied for solo leadership were Harold Frazee and Jack Lucey, each with a 221 game, while Dave Burrough picked up a 205, Jack O'Connell scored a 202 and Mike Pinelli rolled an even 200. . . . In the Major League, Decker's Dairy (56) accumulated six vital points to press loop-dominating Key Shop (58) as Jim Lewis (213-236-193 for 642) and Guido Zinetti (212-214-197 for 623) recorded good series and the following bowled good games: Joe Trani, 220, Bill Flock, 217, Marice Gledhill, 206, Jack Lucey, 204, Charlie Perpetua, 202, and Larry Golden, 201. . . . The Industrial League picture remained pretty much the same, Nassau Del (102) extending its healthy margin over the seven also-rans, though Nassau Service (82) succeeded in emerging from a second-berth deadlock with Glenmoor (78). . . . Wally Brown's 214 put him at the head of his colleagues, followed by John Frazee, 201, Andy Drummond, 200, and John Wengryn, also 200.

Cranbury Pharmacy (76) increased its edge over the Pin Pushers (68) in the 12-team Princeton Women's Bowling League, while Castoro (64) also moved forward and the Ten Pins (62) exercised sole possession of the No. 4 position. . . . Helen Scott sparked the distaff keglers for the week, with her 192-175 showing, outshining Dot Ragany, 185, Betty Cooper, 181-154, Carol Tamasi, 180, Betty Harris, 171-156, Ann Simonson, 170, Mildred Caruso, 169, Marilyn Lowe, 168, and Hazel Robbins, 166. . . . In the Women's Industrial League, there were changes galore. Nassau Service (80) replacing Decker's Dairy (76) atop the pack, Conover Motors (66) replacing the West Windsor Lions (60) in the third-place slot and First National Bank (57) jumping from sixth to fifth.

Question Of The Week

nected with sleeping pills suggest the dangers of "tranquilizers," and therefore proper prescriptions seem only too logical.

Mrs. Marion Houghton, Greenhouse Drive, housewife: I think they're wonderful in helping nervous tension — basing my belief on what I've read about them in the Reader's Digest and other magazines—but I feel they should be taken only on the advice of a physician. Otherwise, some people will take advantage of them, as they do other pills. The big trouble is that you often think you need pills which you actually don't need. So they should be sold by prescription only.

Shops Planned for Fete. Six shops designed to attract buyers of all ages are being planned for the Princeton Hospital Fete, which will be held on June 8. Mrs. Bernard Kilgore is serving as this year's chairman of the gift shop committee.

The University League Garden Club's shop, with Mrs. Dane Munro as chairman, will feature an unusual terra cotta planter in addition to a wide variety of plants. Also featured will be plants from several private greenhouses.

Aprons, pot holders and small articles such as doll clothes will be sold at the Friendship Club's shop. Mrs. Bertha Brandon is chairman of this shop, which will feature only items made by club members.

The Garden Club of Princeton will offer articles ranging from terrace tables with marble tops to doll cradles, according to Mrs. James Barnes, chairman of this shop. There will also be bird baths, hurricane lamps, unusual jig saw puzzles for adult connoisseurs, easily packable garden hats and other items.

The Unitarian Church's Shop, Mrs. Walter Scott and Mrs. Helford Jay, co-chairmen, will repeat last year's fabric shop. The Hopewell Women's Club will operate a toy shop again this year under the direction of Mrs. Douglas Terhune.

The final shop, that of the Hospital Aid Committee, will emphasize the unusual. Mrs. Roy Williams and Mrs. John Lee are chairmen of this shop, which will have small gifts of all kinds.

ANOTHER GIFT FOR YOUTH: In recognition of the YMCA's great need for a motion picture projector for its work with Princeton youngstere, the Princeton Kiwanis Club presented a new 16mm RCA unit to Raymond A. Bowers (left), president of the 'Y', at last week's luncheon meeting of the civic association. Representing his fellow Kiwanians, Richard Chorlton, club president, described the machine's important features for the benefit of Mr. Bowers and Ralph Papa, Kiwanis member who is also youth program director for the YMCA. Both 'Y' officers noted that the projector will be used for training and educational films, developing skills, recreation and adult programs as well. (Town Topics Photo by Alan Richards)

We are staff chemical engineers recently transferred to Princeton by our employer. We have been renting "Fair Hill" on Lawrenceville Road while its owner was vacationing in Florida. He is returning around June 1 and we wish similar accommodations. A furnished carriage or guest house or an unused detached servants' quarters is what we'd like. If the situation is attractive we might even consider decorating the place ourselves.
We are quiet, considerate, clean tenants. Both of us travel a good deal. We have no pets.
During working hours we can be contacted at 1-0209 and evenings or weekends 1-5857-J, or if it is more expedient our address is P.O. Box 505, Princeton.

These savings possible because Designed for Living concentrates on the designing and building of houses alone. No money is tied up in real estate. Also our streamlined techniques afford big savings in quantity buying, and all along the line. All are conventionally built houses—not prefab or precut. All exceptional values—as with this lovely 5-room house, the Needle.

The NEEDLE
This attractive 5-room, 2-bedroom house has a delightful living room with window-wall overlooking front terrace; pleasant dining alcove; convenient kitchen. Price includes foundation. 33' x 28' overall size.

No "TIGHT" Mortgage Money

There are ample low-interest mortgages available for financing our houses, with terms up to 25 years. These are legitimate mortgages from legitimate lending institutions. They are not so-called "no-down-payment, no payment for six months," expensive short-term construction loans that look like deceptively "easy terms" — but which must be repaid within six months . . . necessitating refinancing and adding hundreds of dollars to the cost of your home.

Bring In Your Own Plans—for a bid on the whole job or any part!

Let us prove what fine value our construction techniques offer. We'll give you a bid on building your house from your own plans—the whole job, or any part of it. Or, if you wish, choose from our hundreds of designs!

At the moment there are three sunny apartments. All in one, they would make 5 or 6 bedrooms and 3 baths. See the possibilities?
